

Western culture Or Indian Culture

Western culture

- Western culture is a body of knowledge derived from reason. This foundation of reason has made possible a vast accumulation of understanding related to reality or nature, including human nature. This understanding is represented in several core ideals and values, which include individualism, happiness, rights, capitalism, science and technology.
- Judaism, Christianity, and Islam are monotheistic faiths practiced by about half of the world's population. Monotheism refers to the belief in one God. The faiths are often called western religions to distinguish them from the eastern religions practiced primarily in Asia.
- Western culture is more open. Though social mixing is very much common in western culture. Wearing revealing dresses, however, is quite common in the western culture.
- Though western people may become friends very soon, it cannot be taken as a commitment. If a person has to become committed to another, it may take some time in western culture.
- Western culture has had quite an influence in India but it has its pros & cons too. There are many good things in the western culture which we have adopted

Indian Culture

- Indian Culture is the ancient and one of the most popular cultures in the world. India is very well known for its rich cultural heritage which is a combination of customs, traditions, lifestyle, religion, languages, rituals, cuisine etc. depending upon area.

- Here you can see unity in diversity like people belonging to different religions live happily. Guests are considered God here, people welcomed them with joined hands and a smile on their face. Not only the guests but here people worship animals, statues, rivers, stones, trees, kids etc.
- Indian Culture, is now divided into two categories which are traditional and the modern one. In traditional culture, people give more importance to their society. Community comes first according to them, but this scenario is changing slowly with the impact of westernization.
- There are so many festivals celebrated in the country like Holi, Diwali, Dusshera, Eid-UL-Fitr, Christmas, Baisakhi, Navratri, Muharram, etc. Here you can see the variety of clothing depending on the region. The Indian woman prefers Saree or SalwarKameez with dupatta whereas Dhoti Kurta, and KurtaPayjama is the traditional outfit of men in India
- In Indian culture, one can come across joint families. When talking of western culture, however, they have only small family units. When talking of family life, there is a great bond between family members in the Indian culture
